24 June 2011

Dear resident,

Willow Farm, Chobham Road

Further to my letter dated 21 April and subsequent email sent 3 June 2011 I write to you with an update regarding the planning situation at Willow Farm, Chobham Road.

You will recall from my last update that the owner/occupiers of the site had been successful in pursuing the right to appeal against the decision of the High Court to refuse them leave to appeal against the dismissal of their challenge against the Secretary of State's dismissal. The Council has now been advised that the date for this appeal to be heard is listed as 15th November 2011.

If this hearing is successful I would expect the current owners/occupiers of Willow Farm to exercise their right to appeal the decision of the High Court (which dismissed their appeal against the Secretary of State) in the Court of Appeal.

If the hearing is unsuccessful the Council will be in a position to consider what the next appropriate steps are to remedy the breaches of planning control and enforce the injunction.

Should there be any further information regarding this matter I will continue to update you.

In the meantime, if you are concerned about any new breaches of planning control please do come forward to notify of your concerns.

Yours faithfully,

Lucy Fenton
Enforcement Team Leader
